

Om

Late Sri Raghubar Tayal's
(our grandfather's) 5 generations,

5th Nov, 1992.

Sri Ganeshay namah.

With the help of Almighty I am trying to write the details of members of our family, whose name I remember and whatever special event is in my knowledge.

Our (me and my husband's) grand-father's name was Sri Raghubar Dayal. He had four more brothers whose name and speciality I am not going to mention because it will be too lengthy and next generation has no time or interest to go through all of them. So I will write within limitation but if I need to mention about a few of them in connection ^{with} of our family's context, it will be important.

"Sri Raghubar Dayal"

He had 3 sons and 3 daughters when his wife died and he got remarried. He told his new wife "you are going to be 5 children's mother so please do not think yourself to be a newly wed bride." She followed his instructions and acted upon his instructions ^{and} became an extraordinary mother to all of them. She was hard worker, polite, loving, at times she became a little bit hard only to make them nice and well behaved.

She was obedient and devoted wife and had knowledge only to write letters and read Ramayana or some other book. When her husband (Sri Raghubar Dayal) was a knowledgeable and intelligent person.

He was the first ~~student~~ boy (Indian) who got admission in an English School. Those days British Govt was reigning on the throne of India. Britisher's schools, hospitals, hotels were separate and Indians were not allowed to use them. I do not know how he was permitted to join that English School. There might be some source. Every year he got the top position. I do not know what degree he had finally ^{got?} But I know he was Deputy Collector, children called him deputy chacha and grand - children called him Deputy Baba. He was a member of the family as a whole mixed with others & brothers families.

III

He loved all of them, spent money for them, it was his nature. He was a religious gentleman and had sympathy with poor people. They were taken care by him so he spent for them too. He helped to educate his nephews who got no encouragement from their parents. He donated money & while some temples were constructed so he could not save at all.

My father-in-law Sri Panmatra Prasad was born to him and his wife in 1885. Suddenly Deputy baba died in 1888. My father-in-law had two step brothers called Sri Aftma Prasad and Kantan Baksh, and 3 sisters. I do not know their real names. They were called by nick names.

1st Aftma Prasad

he had no issue

He and his wife died before my marriage, so I will not write about them.

3rd. Sri Panmatra Prasad.

(my father-in-law)

when he was 3 years old his father expired

and no elder brothers.

IV

Although when he was settled. His step mother, sisters and brothers lived with him and got education. He earned and spent for the family.

2nd. Kantabakhs.

He was a Cashier in some bank. He had Raghubar Dayal, only one daughter.

Satgunpyari,

whose family is living at kaufur. I remain till the eldest brother in touch of them. When ever I visit India they come to see me. That family belongs to a rich grandfather but at present they are financially not very so sound and happy.

* ^{© underlined no one was Shankar Dayal suddenly remembered} were fully educated, his mother lived with her youngest brother in law with her six children (3 sons 3 daughters mentioned above). I donot remember this underlined's name at present. He was an attorney. His nature and views were just like his elder brother. He welcomed this family and maintained their living expenditure. Till the eldest brother was able to support them. This whole family was famous for cooperation and unity.

I

Sri Panmatra Prasad had 4 sons and 2 daughters but could survive only one son (Sri Gopal Prasad Srivastava) and one daughter (Srimati Rambyani Srivastava, her nick name was bitti.) other brothers & sister died in their child hood, Sri Panmatra Prasad Srivastava was a good student, intelligent and fast worker. He spent his childhood in a joint family, mother, sisters, brothers and cousins, uncles and aunts etc. He inherited nature, habits and behavior like his father and uncle, when his eldest brother got job at Lucknow, all of them shifted there. And main owner of their house was their widow mother, Whatever she said all three brothers and sisters obeyed. Then two brothers were married and all of them lived together. All 3 sisters were married but two 2 died without issue, the youngest ^{sister} had a son who used to come to us upto 1945, she had an important role within our family. She loved & took care of us, after 1 year of my marriage I knew through my maid servant that she was step-sister of my father-in-law.
